Abstract:
In writing this study, the authors try to explain how to find the value of an error in an experiment conducted by the Physics Laboratory praktikan Basic module called electrolysis. Here the author was asked to run the practice on the Basic Physics Laboratory to obtain an accurate observation data and data processed using formulas that have been there to find the amount of relative error values and literature from manual to computerized ways.