Abstract:

The presence of retail outlets is needed by consumers who have the vehicles to get fuel. Gas station to get fuel supplies from suppliers that fit well in accordance with the type of container, and then channeled through the pump machines to serve the amount of spending by consumers.

Although prosudernya simple, but often have leaks like a mismatch between the revenue management of the supplier with the actual expenditure transactions. Lupanya caused by officers to record or intention for personal gain. This resulted in considerable losses.

To anticipate other than the personal approach is also replace records previously done manually changed automatically to the computer's memory. With the pump I use a digital interface to get transaction reports that have been grouped based on the machine used. This identification is stored on computer memory.
