SYSTEM SALES GOODS IN STORES BOTANICAL GROCERY USING MICROSOFT VISUAL BASIC 6.0
Indri Edriati, 10401162, Cut Asiana Gemawaty., Skom., MMSI
KKP, Information Systems, 2005
STMIK Jakarta STI & K
http://www.jak-stik.ac.id
Keywords: Sales, System

Abstract:
The development of information science and technology provides a very dominant impact on world developments, namely the increasingly wide application of computer technology in the company's sales system. Each company tends to implement a computerized system (Computerized System), in most activities and data processing to obtain objective information is a competitive advantage.
In general, a complete sales system is only used on company or institution that is an absolute necessity for the continuation of the organization. With the growing economy, small companies began to require a better selling system for the advancement of its business. Development is often seen in the company's sales system. So in this writing, the author attempts to set forth the problems faced in store sales system that will computerize the previous system, namely the manual system.