The Small Business

Enterprise (SME) that become our partner in this project is Walking Walking Tour Organizer, which is a company that offers tour and travel, ticket and hotel reservation, visa, and rental car. This company was established since 2010 and officially incorporated since 2015. Walking Walking Tour Organizer is located at Jalan Letjen S. Parman 1/20A, Malang City, East Java, Indonesia. This company aspires to be one of the international travel agents with a mission to realize many people's dreams to travel around the world. Currently, Walking Walking Tour Organizer's target is Indonesian who want to travel overseas.

The company's vision is to become a worldwide-leading company at tour and travel sector, while its mission is to realize people's dreams to be able to travel around the world. Today, Walking Walking Tour Organizer has about six staffs. The detail of its organizational structure is as follows:

Nowadays Walking Walking Tour Organizer is in the low period because it is still not a holiday season. Furthermore, Walking Walking Tour Organizer has not been recognized as a famous tour agency both locally and internationally. Through this project, our team aims to assist Walking Walking tour organizer with advice on how to become ready on exporting, or in this case become an international travel agent.

2. COMPANY READINESS

2.1 Assessment of Export Readiness

Exporting has been known as one of the most popular mechanisms where a company engages with international markets (Morgan et al. 2012). By entering foreign market, a company can be benefited because its profitable sales will likely increase (Delaney 2017). In the case of travel and tourism industry, we cannot find many travel agents that have been successfully entered international market—serve foreign customer instead of the local ones. Thus, it is potential for Walking Walking tour organizer to consider engaging in the overseas market. However, before committing its resources to participate in the foreign business actively, a careful assessment of company readiness is highly recommended. In this section, we will analyze whether Walking Walking tour organizer is ready to enter the international market or not.

The method that we use to assess the company readiness is CORE (Company Readiness to Export) methods. CORE is an assessment tool that will allow us to determine a company's readiness to expand its operations internationally and ascertain its ability to export a certain product (globalEDGE 2017). In the process, the company will be asked a set of questions by which we will be able to systematically and objectively identify its strengths and weaknesses regarding exports. Then, we generate answers (based on the responses) and then places them on four independent dimensions of readiness namely management commitment, export method, marketing strategy, and product potency. Below is the result of our CORE analysis.

Based on the CORE assessment, we found that Walking Walking tour organizer has a high commitment in promoting their service to the world because they are willing to receive our ideas so they can expand their business internationally. This company also has a vision to be a leading international travel agent. Hence it becomes their valuable asset to do export. Regarding the export method, this company is not ready enough to do overseas activities because their service package mostly and exclusively for Indonesian people who want to travel to foreign countries. As for the marketing strategy dimension, this company has an online service like online advertisement and use their website, which also are some added values to do business internationally. Lastly, for the product potency, they have many packages for Indonesians who want to travel out from Indonesia, but not have some package for foreign people who travel to Indonesia. In short, we assume that Walking Walking tour organizer has the potential to do overseas activities.

Therefore, we set some plan for this company to help them expand their business internationally.

2.2 Priority Market

Kotler et al. (2014) argue that a company must first decide who it will serve, in order to successfully expand its business. By trying to serve all customers, a company may not serve any customers well. Thus, a proper selection of priority market is needed so that a company may serve well and profitably.

In the case of Walking walking tour organizer, we recommend Asian countries as the priority market due to several reasons, such as:

According to data from Statistics Indonesia, the number of foreign tourists who visit Indonesia in recent years from Asian countries is relatively higher, compared to the tourists from other countries (See table 1). Thus, Walking Walking Tour Organizer can possibly promote to Asian countries, considering the growing interest of Asian countries tourists to Indonesia tourism destination.

Table1. Foreign tourists visiting Indonesia by country of residence(2010 – 2014) (Retrieved from www.bps.go.id)

Despite being one of the key driving force of growth in ASEAN and has proven resilient amid economic challenges globally, tourism sector contribution to the total GDP and employment in ASEAN is still relatively low. The World Travel and Tourism Council (2011, as cited in Invest in ASEAN 2017) reported that tourism contributed to ASEAN's GDP (4.4%) and employment (3.2%) in 2011. In other words, the opportunities to leverage tourism business in ASEAN countries are still widely opened.

Lastly, the similarities of culture among the ASEAN countries can be an added value for the Walking Walking Tour Organizer expanding its business to the ASEAN countries

4. MARKETING STRATEGY

A good strategy helps a business focus on the target they serve best and how to satisfying their customer wants or needs by staying focused on profitability. Hence, we suggest Walking Walking Tour Organize for use this set of strategy:

- Segmenting: Geographical
- Targeting: Asian Countries
- Positioning: Custom Product (Consumer can choose whatever destination, hotel, and transportation)
- Promotion: Push and Pull Strategy
- Pricing: Multipoint Strategy
- Place: Via Agents

Market Segmentation

Market Segmentation by Geography

In this segmentation, markets are divided into geographical sections such as country, city, and village. The geographic area which is considered potential and profitable will be the target of the company operation. Our chosen company is engaged in tour and travel services, so that market segmentation based on geography will become one of the best alternatives if the company wants to develop their business. In this case, the ASEAN countries are arguably one of the best markets to be tapped.

Market Segmentation by Demographics

This type of segmentation could also become one of the alternative strategies. The market segment would be divided into groups by age, sex, economic, and educational level. This company can focus on targeting men and women aged 20 years or above. Those people are potential because most of them are presumably have worked so they have their own income and already live independently.

Market Segmentation based on Psychography

Psychographic segmentation examines how consumers with specific demographic segments respond to a marketing stimulus. In this case, we target the market in the form of an organization such as government, companies that have a legal entity with a large number of employees because most of these organizations provide facilities to invite employees to travel to other areas.

Market Segmentation based on Sociocultural

As a further basis for market segmentation, sociocultural segmentation that has sociological (group) and anthropological (cultural) variables are divided into appropriate segments of stage: Family life cycle, Social class, Culture and subculture, and Cross-cultural or global marketing segmentation. As such, we target people in the middle and upper class. Such as families who have children who study abroad.

Promotion and Market Positioning Consideration

Promotion is defined as the element in an organization's marketing mix that serves to inform, persuade, and remind the market of the organization and its products (Lao, 1998).

Promotions that is used in this company is advertising on social media such as Facebook and website. We take the social media facebook because of all the social media that exist; facebook occupies the position of the most users (nearly 2 billion people) to reach the desired target market. On Facebook also available paid advertising services that can be set which target market is cool.

7. EXPORT RISK

There are difficult times for travel agencies, when customers go to other agencies to ask questions about some remote destinations when customers search for answers in the Internet in minutes, and the customer relies on a third party agency when he can find it in the Internet, and the housing or service is found Which he is looking for on the Internet, these are reasons why travel agencies today to evolve to be distinct and different from others.

The most prominent risks are checks discarded, frequent number of airline reservations ports, low profit margin, online booking problems, changing airlines to ticket prices from time to time, the reduction of travel agents, the growth of online travel companies, the proliferation of new agents, tour operators and travel agents have led to stiff competition, as well as fluctuation in foreign exchange, and this creates further damage to travel and travel companies who carry out incoming and outgoing travel.

Also the problems or dangers facing the website of these companies are online reservations, is the lack of confidence for customers services or products and problems of payment over the Internet, and therefore must be the goal of tourism companies to increase this confidence and educate and encourage the market to secure the use of booking through its website And safe use of electronic cards in the online marketplace in general.

The risks of the road and the disruption of the means of transport and can be solved by providing alternative means as soon as possible or provide a comfortable place for tourists until the repair of the means of transport, and there are risks such as not to fix hotel reservations or breach of the hotel contract when the arrival of the client and not give him the rooms agreed upon in the contract upon arrival.

There are negative aspects of the direction of employees in the behavior followed by the client, such as lack of experience with the employee in dealing with the client and what is required of him, the training of employees and experience so as not to lose the company customers, and must know how to determine the requirements of customers and mapping on appropriate products such as characteristics, destinations.

8. RECOMMENDATION

The tourist office must be responsible to give the first impression of the tourist about the state, the more the tourist office includes elements on the high efficiency and good ability to attract tourists and tact in dealing with him and meet all the requirements and other details that the tourist cares until he feels satisfied and grateful, and will tell others about the treatment Which he will receive, who in turn will experience and come for tourism in Indonesia.

Providing a high quality of service and maintaining the service are crucial, as those will affect the reputation of the company and its continuity in the future, and provide reasonable prices and competitor to the market any other offices that provide the same services.

There must be a "bond" to be the voice of travel agents and to protect and preserve their rights and face the travel companies that monopolize the market, and there must be a body that works on an agreement between managers of tourism offices abroad, the definition of attractive places and charming, it works to raise tourism rates Thus, tourism companies can attract tourists to it, in addition to the existence of special laws for travel and tourism offices guaranteeing the rights of offices and their interests and the interests of their customers and customers.

Travel and tourism offices should take care and caution from fraudulent transactions such as checks without credit, and deal with trustees and customers known to pay checks to travel and tourism offices, and must verify the credibility of the company or individuals who deal with them.

Companies can often deal with cash payment, although there are circumstances that require trust in the customer and the customer trusts us. For example, if an emergency comes to him, he must travel immediately or change his travel date or anything else. The collection is later, but only with trustworthy customers, whom we have been dealing with for a long time.

9. CONCLUSION
